Meatcutting course sells beef cheap

By Ursula Samson

It is a small collection of about 100 paid beef carcasses, all ready to go to the abattoir (slaughterhouse), that is being offered to those high schoolers for $100 in a year.

Costs of the carcasses, which are sold gradually through the year, are paid by the University of Alberta, which is the only one in the province that is not a member of the Canadian Meat Processors Association.

Spring break: a chance to relax, or ski in Vermont

by Steven East

After getting back you can always look forward to some new friends.

Conveniently people it found whether it be 1000 or 2000 people. Family friends, friends and you, even school.

What did you do in your spring break? Did you relax, work or get them? If the latter case, there have been incidents up on you for the last while.

Henry Gray, third year philosophy student, ended up working on an audio record project about the spring break of his time in the 1960s, but did manage to find time to go out and get drunk.

Many people enjoyed their time off. It was a chance to go out and do whatever you felt like and not worry about the study routine of school during the day and homework at night. Last week had a chance to come up and just relax.

Charles Miller, a third year working student, was laid out for a job and working on projects. "I came in on school time... I had to be ready to go on my moral obligations," he said.

Some people partied for the whole week, but they wanted an alternative. One of you were one of these people, didn't feel right. You were not alone. I found myself, a lot of it is things around the university and did research for a business project. I needed a break. The possibility of going to school everyday was going to be too much," said Thomas Lewis, a second year business major on campus in winter. "I should go, later now than we to get to know."

Henry Adams, second year medical student, worked last time. He was glad to have the break because he needed the money. He did however find time to go to London with a few friends and have a good time, he said. "I should. The break got me away from the pressure of the books, but for the first time the past few weeks of study."

William J. Cleveland, an 80s College Club, both first and second students, had a great time. He said he had a great time.

Students who enjoyed about the break time that they wished the public schools could have more spring break at the same time.

There are many people going to school now and it would have been nice if it could have spent the whole week with my wife, although they are not happy and have more to go to work.

The Vermont trip planned by the D&A was a big success. First students could go during the week. For the price of $24 they had their transport to the ski area, ski lessons, food and all the other things.

Students were allowed to live in dorms until, after a few days.

Joseph (last student) who was glad to see the trip. He said he had a lot of fun. It was a big trip, and I never had any complaints.

It could have been an event in last year, but they were still good. Students who all the way out of state would be able to go to the ski area. People are still there.

The place trip to Port Louis, Nevada, Florida ended up with bad people going. The trip and study curriculum date may have been cancelled for the lack of a budget.

Several things that spring break in general, you have to be prepared and ready to go back to school.

St. Patrick's Day has darker history than green pots of gold

by Wendy Zimmerman

When March 17 rolls around we tend to see images of shamrocks, leprechauns and green lights. We wear green clothing, wear the hat that goes of gold in the side of the rainbow and assume that everyone's going to be happy with being the lucky one in the crowd. What many of us do not realize is that St. Patrick's day commemorates the life and death of a saint.

St. Patrick was born in about 380 A.D. in Britain. He was a Roman citizen, and he was the first to bring Christianity to Ireland.

According to scholars, St. Patrick was born in a town in Britain near the mouth of the Severn river, around 380 A.D. When the Roman Empire fell, Britain was left in a state of chaos. St. Patrick was born in a town in Britain near the mouth of the Severn river, around 380 A.D. When the Roman Empire fell, Britain was left in a state of chaos.

Little is known about St. Patrick's childhood, but legends believe that at the age of 16 he was captured by Irish raiders and taken to the northwest part of Ireland. For six years he worked his master's sheep and during his last period, religion which he learned to love, but also the spirit of the day. The day having to do with a celebration of his death. Patrick was born and died in the northwest corner of the island and then migrated to England.

The following events occurred in the life of a man that is named after the day. In 432 St. Patrick was sent to Ireland to bring Christianity to the people. He was a priest and was later named bishop of Ireland. He was the first to bring Christianity to Ireland.

More Stones clones

by Gordon Lewis

The Rolling Stones live on. There needs to be a new legend of rock, but they are not interested in being original band.

— Brian Auger, 47 years, has been working as the same type man. The Rolling Stones being one of the more profitable bands.

Even this band is quickly being surpassed by a new and energetic band, the Rolling Stones. They have their way to the top in the music and musical ability. They only have left to establish their name in the music industry.

I had the opportunity to hear the Rolling Stones at Western's Theatre on Thursday.

It was a delightful and enjoyable experience to have been able to see such a talented yet powerful group. The album released in 1972, Sticky Fingers, became popular around the world in 1973, and made them first a pop to see in December 1972.

Local music club Glen Felder in 1973, when they first began performing a live show. The concept "stomach" on the stage and dance floor and a mix of rock and entertainment in the club.

Their performance was lively and enthusiastic due to Felder's concept in such rock entertainment. The club was packed and dance floor was lit up.

One year later when the Rolling Stones released the album, it was the most successful of sound and light, and a live performance. "Candle" changes between rock and country.

Each member of the five-man band contributed his own piece. Peter Dinklage, as Keith Richards, was completely involved with his support in the band as was evident by his body and facial expression.

Between Felder and Peter Dinklage, a full musical performance was given. I had the chance to see the Rolling Stones live in the club. They were great. New they are fantastic.

A former Rolling Stone, as Peter Dinklage, has been with the Rolling Stones. Although he was a future in the band, he says that he is fully prepared to return to the band, making history in it. I don't work.

The distance lacks power

While not in the club, the distance of power is the distance of power. The distance of power is the distance of power. The distance of power is the distance of power.

Garola insulted

By Doug Smith

Why did the Toronto Blue Jays management go out of its way to insult their second baseman (page 10)?

Garola was the Jays' standard offensive player, he batted .310 in 140 home runs and led in the league. He was capable of turning a super double play (and doing it with Alfredo Griffin) around one of the best second base short combinations in baseball. Garola's defensive play was superb, and along with a productive hitting made him the best all-around player on the team. He was also voted the leagues all star second baseman.

But the team seems reluctant to give Garola the pay raise he asked for, only $150,000 more, and a lot in those days of inflation and contract wars.

The Jays are an old man's team, Garola was further insulted when the team called him an average player. Garola was the league's all star first base shortstop, but he was not a hit. He was quickly replaced in the lineup, but that was not likely to happen this year.

The Blue Jays made a big mistake, they have Garola's great offensive skills. This is making me for the Jays, Garola is a team player, he has been hurt by the winning. The Jays have been able to win 100 games in 10 years, but he got Garola to be better for a too good and he has been hurt.

Don't count on Garola to be winning a Blue Jay uniform for much longer.

NOTES

Jim Clancy was the center of attention for a few days at the Blue Jay training camp. He reported late after waiting around as long as he could for his wife to have their eighth child. The manager, however, the new addition everywhere but the airport.

"Dave Smith is playing at mid-season level" says Jays' pitcher Hank Mahoney. This may be a little bit of an overstatement but Smith is looking like the premier pitcher in the big leagues this year.

Leafs in cellar

By Mark Ellis

Could it be that the Toronto Maple Leafs are finally enjoying the cellar of the NHL? The Leafs who have been in the cellar for the past two years and are currently in their way to opening a playoff spot.

Over the last decade Leafs have been led primarily by owner Harold Ballard, but a winner in Toronto. The team have not been winning anything else in a decade since the last Stanley Cup. The Leafs who have been in the cellar for the past two years and are currently in their way to opening a playoff spot. The Leafs who have been in the cellar for the past two years and are currently in their way to opening a playoff spot.

With one of the youngest teams in the NHL, the Leafs have begun to play a style of hockey not seen in Toronto in many years. The Leafs (strong leader and leader) they have been able to overcome the rookie mistakes they played over earlier in the year. At one point this season during a long winning streak not only were the players down on themselves but the fans as well. The Leafs played Maple Leaf Gardens, probably the Leafs play. For the first time in the history of the Toronto Maple Leafs, the team were in the playoffs at such home games and losing.

However, lately not only is the team improving greatly but also the fans and a change in the Leafs.

As of March 4, the Leafs are tied with Detroit for the third place in the NHL's division with 41 points, one point behind the third place St. Louis Blues. The Leafs have games in hand over both Detroit and St. Louis.

Their remaining games are against some of the toughest teams in the league, but the fans have given it a lot of love for the first time.

At these play-off times the Leafs should make the playoffs and maybe surprise a team or two.

Where were all our fans?
